It reaches around the world

... but it's part of your own home town

Almost anyone you know, anywhere in the world, is within reach of your telephone voice. Telephone service is state-wide, nation-wide, world-wide.
Yet your telephone service is largely a home-town service. Most of the calls you make are to people nearby. And most of the telephone people who serve you live in or near your own home town. Some of them are your friends and neighbors.
This company must be big to serve 1,220,000 Pennsylvania telephones. But after all it is simply a large number of home-town people, working together to give all the people the finest telephone service in the world at the lowest possible cost.
Is your home or office equipped to take full advantage of modern telephone service? An extension telephone saves time and steps; affords extra protection, privacy and convenience. Ask the Business Office or any telephone employee for further information. The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

That House

In the Background Was the Shand Place

It stood at Price and Narberth avenues. Alexander C. Shand lived there, a kindly, friendly, generous man, who helped to found the Y. M. C. A. in Narberth (where Cotter's Market now is). Director of the Narberth Civic Association, supporter of Oz-Town, he became interested in transforming into today's community playground the dump that had caused smugling Main Liners to call Narberth "poverty hollow." With other prominent citizens he contributed liberally in causing its purchase at a very low price from the P. R. R., of which he was chief engineer. And he bought and held the land that became the borough school playground to prevent ruggedly individualistic speculators from giving the borough a headache. And he helped make Narberth Park the fine residential section it is.

Such was one of Narberth's typical citizens. After his death another prominent Main Liner, Robert J. Nash, occupied his house until it is down. This picture was snapped March 15. In its place stands Montgomery Court, filling as rapidly as its units are completed, with 114 families. The old order change. Whether these families will become the transients that apartment-dwellers are commonly regarded, depends on the warmth of welcome accorded by this section's clubs and churches.

Community life as we know it on the Main Line, is based on the permanence of the residents. The Mary K. Gibson property in Wynwood will be the site of 216 apartments. Across the Main Line tracks from it, the Shortridge estate will have 223 apartments. John R. K. Scott's abandoned diggings on Montgomery pike near Cynwyd's Presbyterian Church will abandon their eyesore status and join the parade. The Eastern Main Line, the swank Main Line... will it become another Philadelphia neighborhood, or will its church and club and other interests fuse and achieve a real community solidarity? Holding our own, and attracting desirable neighbors and making them feel a welcome part of us... That is our need... TOWN and TOWNSHIP is here to help.

Sapid Squibs

by A. M. Fritsch

Every local resident is familiar with the adult gray squirrel. Possibly it would be more correct to say, every local gray squirrel is familiar with our residents. Be that as it may, the number of folks who have had the fun of even so much as seeing a baby squirrel is decidedly limited. For this there is an excellent reason. The young 'uns are kept close to the familiar home in the trees until well grown. Should they seek adventure, they must cut their capers in the higher branches, for a venture much below the level of the nest results in a prompt cuff from the parent then on guard, despite the fact that said elder, stretched on a limb, has, to all appearances, been sound asleep for fully an hour.
The pesky little ones may play tag right over the napper's back, even stopping to tug at the bushy tail or the whiskers of the dignified elder. Such teasing as would try the patience of a human to the limit will be ignored completely, provided the youngsters stay where they belong. Squirrels aren't so dumb!
The Squibble Scrapbook says: "The measure of a man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out."

NARBERTH THEATRE

Pattie Knowles, remembered as Will Scarlet in "Robin Hood," is the fourth in "Four's a Crowd," with Errol Flynn, Olivia De Havilland and Rosalind Russell as Pat Knowles' ultimate consort.

The perfectly maddening sketch embraces a situation not too unlike this: Errol Flynn, former editor, resumes newspaper work at the suggestion of Rosalind Russell. Olivia De Havilland owns the paper on which both Errol and Rosalind are engaged to try to return it to a paying basis. Flynn vigorously attacks Olivia's millionaire grandfather, Walter Connolly, who adores miniature trains and protection by no less than eighteen Great Danes. Of course all becomes frightfully dizzied by a webbed love tangle, but is amazingly and ridiculously untangled by a justice of the peace—Hugh Herbert—and for all you village movie goers—laughter galore.

Monday and Tuesday: these delightful two, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone, with Janet Gaynor, in the vehicle, "Three Loves Has Nancy," "Holiday" with a great couple, in the persons of Katherine Hepburn and Cary Grant will be shown Wednesday and Thursday, a very splendid story.
And next week-end the screen version of the stage offering, "Boy Meets Girl" with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien.

A full week is yours at the Narberth—good evenings!

Now: America's boyfriend, Mickey Rooney in "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" with Judy Garland and Sophie Tucker. As an added attraction on Friday evening a Jitterbug Contest will be held on the stage with Freddie England as master of ceremonies and a ten man swing band to furnish the Jitterbug music, which has become so popular in this day and age.

Sunday and Monday: Walt Disney's 1938 fall review, which includes memorable cartoons such as "More Kittens," "Don Donald," "Mother Pluto," "Worm Turns" and "Magician Mickey." Feature picture will be "Saturday's Heroes," a football story with all the thrills of college football.

Tuesday and Wednesday: Louis Hayward in "The Saint in New York," a story of a one-man war on crime.
"Fast Company" with Melvyn Douglas and Florence Rice will make a one day appearance Thursday. This story is as good, if not better, than "The Thin Man."

The Bounding Main

by A. S. J.

The MAIN thing about this BOUNDING column is its boundingness (we hope). Ye Bounding Main, boys and girls, is ye Bounding Main Line, a-bounding, as the saying goes, with fun and frolic for all. As we bound from wave to wave in our journalistic lightship, we will endeavor to bring you, kind readers, glimpses of this and that, a sight-seeing tour of little known facts of our communities, with a bouquet here, a tsk tsk there, designed to entertain and amuse.

We like to see the little honey touches in the business sections of the Main Line. For instance, the baby carriage for twins on the doorstep of Shea's in Narberth.

The people who long for the "good old days" had many a pleasant memory recalled at the pageant the Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, gave for its alumnae and guests last Saturday. The pageant, part of a three-day celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the school, illustrated styles in travel, clothes and school activities from 1888 on. Cars, vintage of 1900, 1905 and 1908 drove in with parents and young daughters in the costume of the day; other students arrived by bicycle (tandem, two wheel and three wheel), in pony cart, or on foot. Two grand young ladies fashionably gowned in ruffles, enormous hats, and carrying parasols, drove up in the Biddle's Victoria. Following the procession of students from 1888 to 1938, came a series of sweet young graduates, representing graduation styles of 1895 through 1938. Throughout the procession, there were frequent giggles, and ohs and ahs as a student went by clad in the gym suit, or school uniform that her mother had worn before her, but as the young thing in white muslin went up the steps to take the diploma of 1900, an excited woman came running down the walk, camera in hand. "There I am, getting my diploma!" she cried. "I never thought I'd see myself. That's my dress she has on." When it was politely suggested that she sit down, she laughed and said, "Oh, I'm not ashamed of running in front of everyone. There I am getting my diploma, see?"

WARNING!

A very large percentage of the newspapers of Pennsylvania, members of the hiring Tory Press, are bitterly opposed to the New Deal in Washington and Harrisburg. They are all engaged in a campaign of lies, propaganda and news distortion in their attempts to destroy the People's government—a government that makes open pledges to the People and keeps them instead of making secret covenants with the corporations. Do not be misled by your local Tory newspaper. Read every story and editorial in it with the thought that it is intended to wreck and destroy the government that has provided security for you. Your Favorite Quotation

For this week was supplied Sunday by Dr. Andrew Mutch, who has been identified with the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church for 29 years. Speaking at All Saints Church in Wynnewood, he quoted R. L. Stevenson:

"Give me the young man who has brains enough to make a fool of himself."

And sermonizing on "The Second Mile," he made a brief for unselfish community service, such as exemplified by the work of the Main Line Federation of Churches, which will be an editorial topic of Town and Township in an early issue.

Narberth grabbed a nice victory out of the air Sunday with the help of Mooney, who pulled down a pass to sprint 30 yards for a touchdown, and O'Connor, who helped his team to a safety by blocking a kick. Gazella's squad did a nice piece of work in edging out St. Patrick.

Waldron Academy will start off its season by meeting Our Mother of Good Counsel. Among games scheduled, is one between the Academy and Narberth School.

The Main Line League baseball championship was sealed up for another year when Manoa trounced Berwyn 9 to 5. It was a tough game, interspersed with hot and heavy arguments, especially when it ran to three—the score was 3-3 in the third inning, and a near riot was in order. Berwyn outthit the winners, but lost out when pitchers went haywire.

In the Mail Bag

This contributed gem is from Earl Price, of Dudley Avenue, Narberth, who has since moved west:

While sitting around I thought up this little tribute to our guardian of the law, Sergeant Charles Girvin.

TO OUR FAITHFUL SERGEANT

The giants in fairy books
Are daring as you please;
But Girvin is as big and brave
As anyone of these.
He's six feet tall.
He wears a tidy uniform of blue.
He's Girvin, our policeman:
Have you a Girvin too?

He gives the tired horses drinks.
He clears the crowded way
When little children go to school
And hurry home each day.
I wonder when he goes to bed,
For, all the dark night through
We hear the beat of Girvin's feet.
—They're not so little, too.

Yours truly,
EARL PRICE.

Mass Meeting in Bryn Mawr

For the opening meeting of the Lower Merion and Narberth Council of Republican Women, October 29 at Bryn Mawr Fire House, the largest Republican rally during the present campaign is expected. of Bryn Mawr, the attorney who made a good primary showing for nomination as assemblyman, is vice-chairman of the county's young Republicans, of whom his fellow Bryn Mawr John McGarvey is chairman. Their all-day conference, dinner and dance for young Republicans of five counties will be October 29, at the Bellevue. Speakers will include Judge James and Senator Davis.

A rally for Montgomery County Democratic candidates for State and national office will be held this Friday night at Williamson Hall, 50 West Lancaster Avenue, Ardmore. John T. Durnin, Lower Merion and Narberth Democratic chairman, will preside.

The Democratic veterans' campaign committee has announced the appointment of Joseph Stott, Valley Forge Park, as chairman of the Montgomery County group. County Democratic chairman Joseph F. McElwee, of Merion, has informed Bauman that every veteran and his family will be personally contacted in behalf of the all-veteran, all-liberal Earle, Jones, Mundy and Logue Democratic candidates.

At a county-wide rally held Monday evening in front of the Valley Forge hotel in Norristown, over 200 Narberth and Lower Merion Democrats were present. Charles Alvin Jones, Democratic candidate for Governor, addressed the crowd, totaling nearly 3000, after a rally and street parade.

October 24 is the last day to change party affiliations—before November election.

October 29 is the last day to have an address changed when a registered voter moves within a district.

October 29 is the last day to ask for assistance in voting.

State Hospital Dedication

This afternoon a group of new buildings, constructed through PWA aid, will be dedicated at Norristown state hospital. The superintendent, Dr. Arthur P. Noyes, will be in charge of ceremonies at which Governor Earle is expected to speak.

Patients from the old buildings will be transferred to the new quarters in December.

Main liners who will take part in the dedication are John T. Durnin, Overbrook Hills; Mrs. H. J. Hobitzelle, Wynnewood, and Mrs. R. H. Knole, Bryn Mawr, all members of the board of trustees.

Town and Township

Ardmore Woman's Club's first formal dance of the season, a brilliant success, was last Saturday. Series of international relations lectures begins next Friday, the 28th, at 3 P. M.

The new dances rivalled cornstalks and pumpkins for colorful atmosphere at the barn dance given at Lower Merion High last Saturday. Proceeds of the highly popular shindig were devoted by the student council to a fund for student award pins, given at year's end to those showing most service toward good old L. M.

Memorial Property

owned by the Bryn Mawr War Memorial and Community House association was to be offered to the township as the result of a vote taken after a hot discussion on Friday night. Effort had been made for a number of years to keep the grounds on a paying basis but contributions were not forthcoming. Chief opposition to the proposed transfer came from the John Winthrop Post, American Legion, of Bryn Mawr who insisted that township commissioners were political and so should not be given control. Suggestions to retain a portion of the property did not prove practicable.

Lower Merion Police

are making the annual drive for pension funds. Since police officers are not eligible for social security benefits, money collected cares for the men when age or disability overtakes them. Membership in the police pension association goes with each contribution of five dollars or more, according to Evan L. James, treasurer. Lower Merion police offer the citizens very few opportunities to repay them for their excellent services—and they really deserve an expression of gratitude.

Patrolman Mawhinney

of the township force has been selected to take an advanced course at the Traffic Safety Institute of Norristown University. The two-week course will be a follow-up of the Pennsylvania state college work which Mawhinney completed last April. The L. M. patrolman is in charge of prevention work and accident investigation in this section.

Addresses Rotarians on Munich

Tuesday's meeting of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club was devoted to a talk on the recent Munich agreement, given by Dr. Charles Swope, president of West Chester State Teachers' College.

At the luncheon meeting held at the Overbrook Golf Club, Dr. Swope stated that the crisis prior to the Munich conference paralleled that which led countries into the 1914 war and that the futility or value of that war would be proven by the degree of effectiveness of the recent pact.

At next week's gathering, the Rotarians expect to hear a talk by Howard C. Deily, cashier of the Tradesman's national bank on "Banking and Business."

Narberth No. 2

The troop is looking forward to a swim at the West Philadelphia branch of the Y. M. C. A. this Friday evening. We will leave scout headquarters at 6:30. Several boys expect to pass their swimming tests while others will practice for the swimming and life saving merit badges. We expect to have at least one of these swims a month.

Narberth No. 2 also enjoyed very much a joint meeting with a scout troop in Highland Park. The visitors were shown the intricate detail of tent making and came home armed to the teeth with plans, patterns and instructions for making our own tents. It is hoped that in the near future Highland Park will do us the honor of visiting us at our troop meeting.

Valley Forge council headquarters announces a school survey is now being made in Narberth, Merion and Bala Cynwyd to determine the effectiveness of scouting in this area and chances for improvement. In the past these surveys have shown interesting results which have proved most helpful to scouting in general and there is little reason to believe that this particular survey will prove otherwise.

A new pamphlet has been issued entitled "The Scout Program in Protestant Churches," compiled by the Protestant committee on scouting. The purpose of the book is to show the services scouting can perform in churches and the procedure to organize new troops.

Council headquarters will very soon put into effect a new plan of operation for scouting in a neighborhood way instead of individual troops. The scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, and troop committee representatives from all the troops coming under the jurisdiction of a neighborhood commission will hold meetings once a month. These meetings will be presided over by the neighborhood commissioner and should go a long way towards friendlier and more efficient relations between troops.

127 Cubbing officials of this area attended the Cubbing conference, last weekend at Penn's Christian Association.

Mary Huff and Jane Morris of Troop 18, on the dramatics committee, served the hot chocolate.

Miss Lucille Clarke, of Penn Valley, Main Line dramatics chairman, outlined the rules for the district mock radio broadcast, while Mrs. Floyd asked the scribes to suggest the way they would like to handle troop news for the papers, and explained what the papers would take.

Philadelphia has been selected as the scene of the national Girl Scout conference next year, according to staff members just returned from the convention at Kansas City.

Plan Radio Skit

Mascara and grease paint were the subjects mostly discussed by troop 18 of Merion Tuesday in preparation for their mock radio skit. Next week the play-writers, Mary Huff, Jane Morris and Barbara Floyd will present the play to dramatics chairman Harriet Pfeiffer who will cast it.

BARBARA FLOYD, scribe.

Mrs. Homer Eachus, captain of Merion troop 230, announced at the meeting Monday that the four patrols will receive points for their work. Now the race is on for completing the order for Needlework Guild garments.

Mrs. Angel coached the "puppeteers" while the other girls played games.

PATSY TAITT, scribe.

Narberth troop 8 worked on dramatics last evening, then the twenty-five girls divided into three hobby groups. Mrs. William Sargent taught the Art heim, where William Henry Stiegel started his first glass works in 1765, making chiefly bottles, and his second in 1770, where he made many kinds of household glass. When one reads of his pompous life followed by bankruptcy in 1774, it is interesting to note that recently a salt dish made from scrapings of metal from the corner pots in his factory auctioned at $140.

Mrs. Walter Michels of the teaching staff of Bryn Mawr College will dramatize parts from the Irish religious play, "Shadow and Substance," by Paul Vincent Carroll, at the literature meeting to be held Tuesday at 1.30 at the home of the group's chairman, Mrs. Joseph Gurbarg. The play is the story of the revival of religious zeal in the heart of a priest by the simple faith of a servant girl, and Mrs. Michels will compare it with Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan." Co-hostesses with Mrs. Gurbarg in serving dessert luncheon are Mrs. H. C. Middleton, Jr., and Mrs. A. J. Mottern.

Flower experts who were guests of the club to hear Dr. Wherry on wild flowers Tuesday: Mrs. Frank Dager, Montgomery county chairman of conservation and gardens; Mrs. E. S. Griscom, bird lecturer and owner of the bird sanctuary at Roslyn; Mrs. A. B. Ross, past state chairman of conservation and, as past president of the Narberth club, one of its honorary members.

And conservation chairmen of neighboring clubs, including Mrs. L. H. Holmes of the New Century Club of Philadelphia; Mrs. J. Bernard McGovern of the Penn Valley Club, who with Mrs. E. C. Main Linings for you, your home and your friends, chosen by your observer from the many fine shops along the Main Line. Please mention Town and Township when you look up the choice items that are advertised here . . .

The newest trend in sport clothes is to have a matching wool skirt with your Brooks sweater. Alicia Marshall, Inc., 14 Coulter, Ardmore has skirt lengths of fine wool, imported from Scotland, and the matching wools from which to knit your Brooks sweater, also imported from the country of bagpipes and kilts. You may have free instructions, as many as you wish, in knitting one of these sweaters and you can't help but be delighted with the completed outfit.

Free-hen up your home for fall with large bunches of bittersweet and Japanese Lanterns from Naomi Griffith's Shop, 57 St. James Place, Ardmore. They are large bunches for fifty cents. Also, you can always find beautiful fresh cut flowers in this charming florist shop. Naomi Griffith is a specialist in lovely flower arrangements. Be sure to call her up for suggestions the next time you have a dinner or special party and want your table to invoke envious comments among your friends.

What an interesting world we live in. Don't be surprised when I tell you that the very finest tea can be found at Margaret Paul's, St. James Place, opposite Strawbridge's. You couldn't select a more welcome gift or bridge prize than the lacquered canisters of imported Ceylon that she is featuring right now for one dollar. If you have the delightful habit of inviting friends in for afternoon tea, serve Jasmine and sniff the aroma as the delicate blossom floats in your cup. This is attractively packed in Chinese baskets for seventy cents the half pound. A connoisseur would also appreciate the tins of Formosa at the same low price.

You have probably heard of the lovely Orrefors Swedish crystal glassware. Gilman's, Inc., now have graceful Fostoria vases at half the usual price for the fine crystalware. They are only six dollars a pair and are

Autumn Ball

The dance committee for the Autumn Ball to be given by the Jephtha Abbott Chapter D. A. R. on November 4, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, has been chosen. It is headed by Mrs. H. Herbert Parcher, chairman, and Mrs. James C. Cameron, regent.

styled in three clever new designs. Send your hostess a pair of them with your "bread and butter" letter and you'll have a lifelong friend.

Have you ever stopped to wonder how people sometimes start their business? Mrs. Pedrick who makes the delicious chocolate creams, fruits and nuts, told me that she started making candy about six years ago on a dare. She was treated to candy at the home of a friend and said that she was sure she could make better candy than that herself. The friend challenged her. After some months of experimenting she perfected her method and believe me, she perfected it! If you doubt me, visit her at 111 Grayling, Narberth or call Narberth 2737. One dollar a pound for chocolate covered fruits and nuts; eighty cents for creams.

A bright-colored wool dress is just the thing for these in-between days in town, or for a football game. Dudley-Low, Inc., St. James Place, Ardmore, is featuring a line of new wools for around $29 which are both smart and gay. The new lavender shade is especially pretty in a soft nubby wool with a simple crew neckline, short sleeves, and a brown leather belt. A good town outfit is a black wool dress with a short red jacket trimmed in Persian lamb. Also with the jacket idea attractively carried out, is a rust-colored light-weight wool with a velvet jacket of the same color.

There's always something new at Ye Oddity Shoppe, 209 Haverford, Narberth. This week it's the Brownie Block Prints. They are cleverly made up into writing paper cases and baskets, sewing kits, desk sets, scrap baskets, knitting baskets and all sorts of attractive and useful gifts. The prices range from fifty cents to a dollar and a half. I bought a set of Brownie table mats. They are washable and fine for luncheon or for table protection where there are young children. The designs are clever as can be and they come eight in a set for a quarter.

I'm sure you'll be pleased to know that those enterprising young women across from the Narberth station, Jackson and Foltz, now have a full line of children's hosiery in popular fall colors. They have the short, five-eighths, and long socks so you can be sure to find the length you want for your youngster's needs. There you can also find sport lisle hosiery for misses. The same price prevails for all—twenty-five cents a pair.

Somehow or other people will put us on mailing lists. Really we don't mind much for our office is fitted with a truly tremendous waste basket. The other day though we got a card from "Scotty" (Walter J. Scott to you) boldly stating, "You pay for home insulation; do you have it?" Boiling mad we rushed around to Scotty's showroom at 108 Forest avenue to accuse him of using the mails to defraud or at least mislead. You see we aren't directly paying for insulation. After he introduced us to a few people whose homes he insulated we decided we are paying for insulation whether we will or no.—Maybe you are, too. Better see "Scotty" and find out.

If you saw Mrs. Jefferies' lovely window study in tones of purple and fuchsia last week you will be eager to see the charming evening frock on display now. It is a Judy 'n' Jill original for the miss who wishes to be both demure and sophisticated. That sounds well-nigh impossible, but the high waist, dainty rolled neckline and full skirt are irresistibly quaint although the back decollete and cluster of vari-colored ostrich plumes at throat mark it as the ultra in up-to-dateness. The material—rich moire, the color, a soft dusty pink. The price $22.50. Top it with a bunny cape (fifteen dollars) and your young miss will be fully equipped to lead an old-fashioned cotillion or do the Lambeth Walk.

DR. WALTON says:

By their eyes shall ye know them. The eyes express the character of the mind; The joys, The sadness, The love, and the hate.

Put a pair of sun goggles on; your best friend would have trouble recognizing you.

You've no doubt read fashion notes of the current trend for the use of tweeds in evening wraps. You'll never find anything lovelier than the beautifully-fitted lines of the soft white tweed evening coat in Francy's, 17 E. Lancaster, Ardmore. The shoulder trim is in gold applique and forms the crowning touch for the most stunning coat I have seen this season—and I've just been window-shopping on Fifth avenue.

Your sincere observer.

More Light! Here's How We're Celebrating My 20th Anniversary . . .

October 17, 1918, I began electric contracting and repair work here. In 1921 mine was the first radio store on the Main Line. During these 20 years we've made installations in the largest public buildings and homes in this section, and we've been of service to the smaller homes, too.

Just completed, for instance: Rewiring the Narberth School, replacing 400-watt illumination with 2000-watt, semi-indirect, easier on students' eyes and teachers' and parents' nerves.

Last year your electric shop won a national contest for selling light bulbs. It's appropriate that a new contest begins on this, my 20th anniversary . . . I subscribe, as your friend and children's friend, to the slogan:

"Save eyes with better light."

And so---here's a contest ---for YOU:

There's a basket of electric lamps in my window. Study them. Buy a carton of six lamps (any sizes) and register your name, address and guess of the total number of watts in the basketful—and the closest guesser will win a fine big turkey.

Consolation prizes will be a regular flashlight and a special pocket-size flashlight. Contest closes November 19, with prize award Thanksgiving Eve. Come, now—what's the wattage?

Musical Musings

By JOSEPH E. BARONE

CHILDREN'S PRACTICE

One of the most frequent complaints I receive is that children won't practice. Parents tell me from time to time that Johnny seems to have lost all interest in his piano.

"He's just plain contrary," one father confided. "That kid of mine would rather play baseball on the corner lot, while I'm wasting good money for his music lesson!"

And I have to smile, for if I recall correctly, they used to have the same trouble with a youngster named, Ludwig van Beethoven.

Why do parents forget their childhood so soon? As I look back, it was generally my turn at bat when I heard that familiar call to come to practice my violin lesson. Little wonder, then, that music seemed such a drudgery to me!

It isn't necessary to dig out your child psychology manual to solve this problem. All that is needed is common sense and fairness.

How would you like to interrupt your weekly bridge game in order to do your ironing? And who would think of stopping an exciting golf match at the fourteenth hole, because the car had to be washed? Yet the ironing is always done, and the car always manages to be cleaned, in spite of those few moments stolen for relaxation.

In the same manner, a child's time can be budgeted for study and play without sacrificing either one. Assuming that the period after dinner is reserved for homework, it generally means that there are several hours after school which can be devoted to play and music. From experience, I find that the best results are obtained by setting aside the same time each afternoon for practice, without permitting anything to interfere. Children being plastic, this habit can be formed very easily, with a little cooperation.

Another point which parents seem to forget, is that children seldom comprehend the reason for studying an instrument. At that early age, the reward for pounding out scales and exercises by the hour seems too far out in the dim future.

Let's not overlook the fact that exercises can seem very dull to a child, and that play is much more natural for him. And don't forget that one word of praise can offer a much greater stimulus than a severe scolding.

When your child rebels against his music, as most children will at one time or another, try kindness and understanding, and the solution will be found near at hand.

Used Car Stocks Low

1939 Model Buyer Benefits,
Says Chevrolet Dealer

"Conditions in the automobile market based at least on our own business, are extremely favorable to a decided up-turn in new car sales," says C. H. Kirsch, President of the Kirsch Chevrolet Company. Two factors were cited by Mr. Kirsch as reasons for an optimistic outlook as he said, "When used car stocks are as low as at present, the new car buyer benefits most because trade-in values reach a high peak, and this alone tends to stimulate new car buying. But we have an even more encouraging sign: the large number of people who are signing orders for the new 1939 Chevrolet even before announcement of our new model."

"The new 1939 Chevrolet will be on display for the first time on Saturday, and we anticipate one of the biggest and most interesting announcement day crowds in our history," Mr. Kirsch concluded.

Sh-h-h... Business-like
During Philadelphia's taxi strike, Main Line taxi-drivers didn't dare cross City Line for fear of beatings. Howard Kromer's Cynwyd Taxi men had trouble. But the strike is irrelevant to this item, which concerns Narberth.

At the station once called Elm, stands a taxi stand. One morning last week a charming young woman missed the Paoli Local, and couldn't wait half an hour until the next, for fear of missing connections at 30th Street for New York. In a few minutes, there would be a train stopping at Wynwood, and so she hailed a taxi to take her there. But all the numerous taxis were out, delivering or bringing customers. She waited five golden minutes, 300 suspense-fraght seconds, and still no taxi. A man came out of the Narberth Bank to his car. She hailed him, and received the timely courtesy of a lift to Wynwood.

And now, let's to business about the Narberth cabs. A suggestion to the Narberth Taxicab Company: If you'll buy an extra cab and park an ad in this paper to tell about the added facility for our readers, we'll write ads for you that will bring more than enough business to pay for that cab, that ad, and the driver's pay. We'll even provide a driver.

Ask about the club rate for subscriptions to this paper. The volume of publicity in Town and Township for your organization depends on your percentage of subscribers. . . .

One of the Great

Events of the Year at Presbyterian Church

Concluding services of the Bible and Missionary Conference being conducted by the Narberth Presbyterian Church will be held this weekend.

Friday afternoon at 3:30, Rev. James Rayburn, Jr., of Arizona, will have a special meeting for children. On Saturday evening, the young people of the Church will have their annual dinner. Rev. Rowan Pearce will bring the message at that time. On Sunday morning, the Church will receive its annual missionary offering. This has become one of the great events of the year for the Church. At the evening service on Sunday, several missionaries will be present. Rev. T. Stanley Soltan will bring the closing message. The Happy Clowns, who broadcast over Station KYW, will be present at all of the evening services and will conduct the music and sing. The public is cordially invited to attend any of these meetings.

The Woman's Club of Bala-Cynwyd is having a dance for members and husbands, this Friday night at the club house, with bridge for those disposed, and floor show at 10 P. M. in charge of Miss Lucille Stoddart. Mrs. George Clifford is chairman of the committee in charge.

Miss Bessie Howard commented on "European Impressions" at the club's international affairs meeting Monday. And the home and citizenship department that day sponsored a trip to Ellis College and Glen Mills. And Mrs. E. Harmon Friel's verse speaking choir held its first meeting.

The B-C Neighborhood Club's Annual banquet is announced for November 19, at Philadelphia Country Club. Joseph Conway is in charge of entertainment. J. Walter Tobin of tickets and Everett H. Bickley of boosters. Former president H. Gleason Matton is general chairman of the committee, whose other members are President Henry E. Sharp and David G. Wilson, the club's secretary-treasurer.

Pierce School Graduates

A group of Narberth residents, who were graduated last evening in the Academy of Music, where the Pierce School, Pine Street west of Broad, held its annual commencement exercises, was made up of: Evelyn Allison Moore, 325 Grayling; Evelyn Eda Hansell, 929 Montgomery; Ethel Elizabeth Clark, 207 Haverford; Celestia Lucille Baker, 290 Haverford and Bettie B. Morford, 101 Woodside.

Shhh!—Keep Quiet!

Mr. Fultz lives at 119 Chestnut, Narberth. Four o'clock last Sunday morning his dog barked. He went downstairs to let him out. But what the dog wanted was to warn him. A man was outside in the darkness, on a basket, trying to pry a rear window open. Mr. Fultz made for the phone to call the police, but his line was busy. Party line. He took a desperate look around, before trying the phone again, and saw another burglar at another window. Time-awastin', he hurried back to the phone. Line was still busy. He tried to break in on the conversation, and pleaded and cajoled and stormed—to no avail. Party line. He was so worked up he strode forth, one-eyed, passion-tongued, and yelled at the burglars to depart hence, or words to that effect. Well, sirs and madams, the burglars (who may have been the ones who dastardly robbed another borough home recently, when the family was funeral-attending) decided that discretion is the better part of malheur (pardon the French) and departed. Mr. Fultz, only slightly

Former Pastor Supplies Pulpit

The Westside Presbyterian Church of Germantown has had as its supply pastor, during the fall, Dr. John Van Ness, 108 Grayling, former minister of Narberth Presbyterian Church. Pelts Down the Schuylkill Indians, especially in beaver skins. Records indicate that a shipment down the river numbered 2,127 packages of skins.

Quite a different country it was then. Silence, broken only by the sounds of wind and water or the cry of a savage, reigned supreme over what was rich virgin forest. There were no roads; fallen timber and rocks encumbered the passage of even the early trappers whose narrow foot trails in the primitive forests were the only known means of travel.

The sound of the axe, however, soon shattered the silence; the savage's cry became less distinct. Penn and his colony brought an increasing number of settlers who desired to escape oppression in Europe. Gradually the Swedish, Welsh, and English settlers on the southern and central borders, and the Germans on the northwest attacked the forests and the rocks. They made peace with the Indians, pushed their settlements into the outlying districts, and soon uncovered the county's rich resources.

Rude dams and weirs in the Schuylkill first shattered the peace of this section. Impressed not only by the fertility of the land, but by the rich supplies in game and fish, settlers turned to the rivers and creeks and built these contrivances to catch the migratory species. Boatmen were determined not to have their use of the rivers obstructed, and they set about to destroy the dams. Such activity led almost to civil war and caused Penn to pass a law forbidding river obstructions.

It must be remembered while all this was happening, no one had even heard of Montgomery county. It was included in Penn's Philadelphia county for a century after the founding of the latter in 1682.

The birth and christening of Montgomery county came in 1784, when, by an act of the Assembly, it was divided from Philadelphia county and became a separate sub-division of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It is interesting to note that Montgomery county is about as old as the line of United States presidents, for only several years later Washington took the oath of office.

Even under the next regime when the county was fully equipped with a name and all the trimmings of proper government, life was strangely different from today. The old-time "country squire" was a conspicuous character, and as late as 1819 part of his official duty was to examine all trappers of wolves and panthers in the county. After certification of their returns, the trappers received a reward of twelve dollars a head.

As unique as these duties, were the conditions under which justice was first carried out in the county. In the winter of famed '84, first court proceedings were held in the old "Barley Sheaf Barn" situated in Norriton township, on what is now the Germantown pike, a short distance northwest of the Hartman station. A trip to Philadelphia at the turn of the century was quite an ordeal. The "King of Prussia," a noted tavern on Race street, was the city terminus, and a fee of ten shillings would take a traveler out as far as Bethlehem on what was then called a "stage wagon." Four days was the standard time for a round trip. Later the time to Philadelphia was reduced to one day's drive on the official mail coach.

By 1835, the residents of Montgomery county had a new form of transportation, the steam railroad. For twelve and one-half cents a passenger could ride as far as Manayunk on the newly formed "Philadelphia, Germantown & Norriton railroad." Matthus W. Baldwin built the first locomotive, which made its trip on the Germantown branch of this railroad, the first step in an amazing century of rail progress.

Development was not alone confined to transportation. Many new industries appeared during the first part of the 19th century, among them mining. It was known that copper ore existed in this locality as early as 1800, and Stephen Guard, the famous Philadelphia merchant and mariner, invested money in a shaft on the Wetherill estate after heavy wagon wheels had turned up some ore with mud.

Copper mining in the county brought English miners from the Cornwall mines in England, and ore was found in such abundance that shafts were sunk by two different companies and profitable mining continued up until the time of the Civil War. Although at times various precious metals have been found including gold and silver, never has their discovery resulted in anything of commercial importance. The mining of iron ore of the non-magnetic type has remained the chief industry along with the production of excellent building stones and marbles.

The post-Civil War boom with the growth of big business left its mark upon the county. The steel, textile, and paper industries grew, with the result that many towns were established.

The increase in population during this industrial period was remarkable. Census figures for the county in 1860 showed a population of 70,500, while at the present time it is approximately 270,000. In Lower Merion township, the population increase during the same years was seven-fold.
